Did You Know?

Did you know that The First Doctor Who, William Hartnell, once lived opposite The London Apprentice Pub in the 1920's. That is probably the reason why Isleworth will always remain a timeless place in history!!

If you have any interesting facts, information or stories you'd like to share, please contact any committee member.

In The Air

Recent reports suggest that Chancellor George Osborne is showing a preference for a new runway at Heathrow rather than at Gatwick but there is no decision yet.

PM David Cameron is keen to avoid a split in the Cabinet where it is clear there is strong opposition to Heathrow expansion from several members.

Protesters have been drawing attention to Mr Cameron's 'No ifs no buts' pledge against a 3rd runway before the 2010 election. Also to the level of ill health and premature deaths cause by London's air pollution which could only get worse with an extra runway and the additional surface traffic it would bring.

Hogarth's House

The Mulberry Garden

Discover the story of the garden at Hogarth's House the country home of William Hogarth the great painter, engraver and satirist.

Hogarth's House is celebrating the award of a Heritage Lottery Fund grant with a new exhibition telling the story of the garden from the 1680s to the present day. The grant will go towards the creation of a learning centre and the refurbishment of the garden over the next two years.

Step back into the past through the gate in the high brick wall and you enter a sheltered garden with an ancient mulberry tree. Through images, maps and contemporary writing you will discover Hogarth's stable, studio and the memorials to the Hogarth family's pets. Meet the Victorian pig-keeper and nursery gardeners who lived there in the 1870s and read descriptions by past residents and visitors.

Using 18th century gardening books, old garden tools and historic images, the exhibition will present some lavish local gardens which have now been lost and the Georgian nursery gardeners who supplied plants and garden equipment in Brentford and Chiswick. The initial ideas for the Mulberry Garden project of 2015 - 17 will also be on show.

Trace & Explore Convicts' Lives

The Digital Panopticon is a collaboration between the Universities of Liverpool, Sheffield, Tasmania, Oxford and Sussex. Led by an international team of established researchers, it will use digital technologies to bring together existing and new genealogical, biometric and criminal justice datasets held by different organisations in the UK and Australia.

It will explore the impact of different types of punishments on the lives of 90,000 people sentenced at The Old Bailey between 1780 and 1875. Develop new and transferable methodologies for understanding and exploiting complex bodies of genealogical, biometric, and criminal justice data and create a searchable website.

It can help you trace people through historical records, determining what impact crime and punishment had on their lives.
